“Violence against women is perhaps the most shameful human rights violation and it is perhaps the most pervasive. It knows no boundaries of geography, culture or wealth. As long as it continues, we cannot claim to be making real progress towards equality, development and peace.” -

ABSTRACT

Here, we are attempting to gauge the types of crimes and extent of crimes against women in particular in Tiruchirappalli City from 2012 to 2017. The year 2012 recorded the highest crimes against women i.e. about 24.6% whereas the lowest were recorded in 2017 i.e about 12.8%. Therefore, it is clear that the rate of crimes against women in Tiruchirappalli City had been declining from 2012 to 2017. On perusal of the statistics collected, it was seen that cruelty by husbands, which were a whopping 32.4%, perpetrated the highest crimes against women whereas the lowest crimes against women about 1.9% thankfully were dowry deaths. Thus, we can safely conclude that the Tiruchirappalli City police administration have been doing a commendable job in fighting crimes against women however more efforts must be made to ensure that crimes against women in the city are zero.

INTRODUCTION

Crimes against women have been rampant in our society since time immemorial. A global issue transcends the boundaries of countries, cultures, regions and communities. Violence against women exists at various levels be it physical violence, mental torture, emotional abuse, domestic abuse and public humiliation. Crimes against women have their roots in the poor status of women in most countries of the world. Women are the most oppressed and tormented section of society. However, over the past few decades through various revolutions and rebellions by both men and women alike, the status of women has been improving. Education, stricter laws as well as economic independence have gone a long way in the emancipation of women all over the world. Yet, women are still targeted by criminals especially in the sexual context.

Women have to suffer the most heinous of crimes even today. Rape and sexual abuse are always the highest rate in most cities of India. Together with this domestic violence, dowry deaths, kidnapping (women & girls), molestation, cruelty by husband, child marriages, sex trafficking, feticides and infanticide are also on the rise. The advancement of science and technology has made women more vulnerable to certain crimes like online stalking and pornography.

The reasons for increasing crimes against women are numerous, the primary one being that they have always been considered as the weaker sex because of whom, they are targeted. In India, women are still considered as a burden on the family and in the lower strata are denied even basic education as it is regarded as unnecessary. The media has objectified women since time immemorial deeming it acceptable to treat them as sex objects. No matter how economically independent or educated women become, social ideologies and male egoism keep them marginalized. Thus, crimes against women are always on the rise and in some cases even accepted by warped social customs.

K.D. Gaur 2013<sup>1</sup> has made an in depth study on various sections related to crime against women with latest case laws and the need of amendment in Indian Penal Code, 1860 with the Criminal Amendment Act, 2013 in his book A Textbook on the Indian Penal Code.

B.K. Pal 1987<sup>2</sup> in his book Problems and concerns of Indian Woman has highlighted the issues and challenges faced by the Indian Woman while achieving equality for them.

S. C. Tirpathi 2014<sup>3</sup> in his book “Woman and Criminal Law” has extensively highlighted the crimes committed against women in India. The author has thoroughly discussed the Nirbhaya gang rape case, which necessitated the rapid passing of the Criminal Amendment Act, 2013 by the government on account of the massive public outrage.

Shobha Saxena 1995<sup>4</sup> in her Book Crimes against Women and Protective laws has given an explicit and frightening account of trials and tribulations of women who yearn for sensitive attention.

Through this book, the author wants to highlight the heinous crimes that are committed against women as well as bring to the foreground the ineffectiveness of the existing laws dealing with crimes against women.

Justice Verma Committee Report 2013<sup>5</sup> on The Criminal Amendment Act has also highlighted the issue of providing safety and security to women both within the home and outside.

It is the need of the hour that social attitudes undergo a sea change so that women are given the respect and recognition that they deserve. Gender equality and gender sensitization are two powerful tools that will go a long way in reducing the crimes against women. Together with this, there should be strong law enforcement agencies and rigorous punishment for offenders to stop perpetration of crimes against women. Women should be well aware of their rights as well as of the laws that protect them so that they can be the defenders of their own dignity and security. The government should fast track all cases of crimes against women to ensure that the criminal justice is delivered rapidly to victims and their families. With the combined efforts of the Central and State Governments as well as NGO's and women themselves, the crimes against women can finally cease.

STUDY AREA

The Tiruchirappalli city base map had been drawn from Survey of India Toposheets Nos. 58 J/9, 10, 13 and 14 lies between the latitudes 10° 43' 40" – 10° 53' 00" North and the longitudes 78° 38' 14" - 78° 48' 50" East. The city is situated in central southeastern India, almost at the geographic centre of the state of Tamil Nadu. The topology of Tiruchirappalli is almost flat, with an average elevation of 88 meters (289 ft). A few isolated hillocks rise above the surface, the highest of which is the Rock fort. It is one of the oldest rocks in the world and its estimated age of 3,800 million years. Other hillocks include the Golden Rock, Khajamalai and one each at Uyyakondan, Thirumalai and Thiruverumbur are prominent. It Covers 167.23 square kilometers.
